

CREATIVITY

IN CODE

W/ INTERNET

The Internet gives us access to fully express our minds and push our creativity to endless limits.

The internet is very easy to reach now and days, it benefits those who have poor penmanship when it comes to the pen and paper.

Whatever happens to the poor piece of paper is definitely not an accurate representation of my imagination.

Don't always be quick to judge, because you never know.

The next New York Times Bestseller or world known artists could be right next to you typing up his art.

PERSONAL STORY

Java has made our lives easier, so much in-fact that for this project specifically, Javier and I used Java to help us complete part of it. We've never been great artists, and our handwriting isn't exactly the best, but a presentation or writing assignment can be done online and turned in, without having to actually physically write it. We really don't like making posters because they don't always turn out the best, but we definitely think that online powerpoint/slides look amazing and are definitely more fun and engaging to use.